Don't forget you especially. But the best of luck + all see you next year.
"FEDERATE IN THE JOURNALISM CLASSES OF COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL COLUMBUS, WASHINGTON."

[Sketch of a building with "OLYMPUS 1938" written on it]
To Vice Principal James P. Fiddle, because of his cheerful willingness to counsel the students and to do the tasks so thoughtfully put before him, we dedicate this, the 1938 edition of The Clipper Annual.

"Learn while you're young," he said.
"There is much to enjoy down here below;
Life for the living and rest for the dead!"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

GEORGE ARMFIELD.
GRADUATION! The immediate goal of every senior. After four years of struggle upward, the class of '38 has reached the top. Looking back on his sojourn in Olympia high, each senior sees the years in a different light. Some minds dwell on the athletics side of the picture, recalling the past their classmates have played on the field of sports. Football, basketball, track, baseball, tennis, and—will pass before his retrospective gaze.

Highlighted in other minds is the dramatic—the senior play, "The Bishop Misbehaves," the junior production, "Growing Pains," and, before that, the sophomore and freshman assemblies. And still another—"the turnpikesmen—"remember the senior ball, the junior press, the May dances and the many, many all-rights.

Prominent, also, in the march of events before our mental reviewing stand is the senior dress-up day, when juniors and underclassmen "marveled" at the senior attend and costumes of the revellers. On and on, ever onward—the parade of the past.

And now, the biggest show of the year—graduation! With the commencement and baccalaureate exercises, teachers, with a last lingering, backward look, said goodbye to Olympia high school—the home for four illustrious years.

"Smartest in her class" is Ruth Olson, left, who won valedictorian honors with 3.5 A's and 3 B's for a 97.62 percent average.

Right, Margaret Wicner, salutatorian, with an average of 98.79.

WITH Frank Baker in the presidential chair and ably assisted by Zoe Sears, vice president; Victor Vanderweer, secretary; and Mary Kervin, treasurer, the junior class made a brilliant first semester record. Highlight was the Junior play.

Taking over the controls for the second semester were Roger Olson, president; Dick McNamara, vice president; Muriel Pierce, secretary, and LaVada Gillien, treasurer. In their reign fell the well-organized Junior week, the prom and assembly.

Miss Mabel Stromme, Walter Ingle, Miss Grayce Rotman and Cecil J. Perkins graciously filled the positions of advisors.

juniors are jubilant

Bearing their coat-of-arms of navy blue and white with regal manner, the juniors gallantly marched through the school year... To start things the ’33ers presented Sophie Kerr and Anna S. Richardson’s “Big-Hearted Herbert.” Played to overflowing house, proclaimed worthy amateur production... Every dog has his day, but the juniors had a whole week to strut their talent before the admiring and envious eyes of the student body. During this week of dictatorship they published a junior edition of THE OLYMPUS, took charge of “On Olympia” radio program, proclaimed junior courtesy throughout the school, replaced teachers with junior students for one complete day... Climax—their version of Walt Disney’s “Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.” Script by Jim Bronson, direction by Miss Stromme... Bronson general chairman of the week... Candy dolls, peppermint sticks, lollipops, colored balloons, upperclassmen—all were at the prom, headed by Katherine Brown.
Gladys retained her position as class secretary for second semester as Dan Cushman filled the presidency and Bill Powell the vice-presidency.

Advisers Miss Agnes Bushnell and Clarence B. Munford pointed out to them the signposts on their second journey through high school life.

sophomores spell school spirit

On September 7, 1937, 364 freshmen returned to O.H.S. labeled sophomores—real veterans who know the ropes and say “Hello, freshman” with a note of triumph.

Making an initial plunge into the fountain of high school society, the sophs engineered a matinee dance to which incoming freshmen were invited as honor guests.

Life in an institution for higher learning (college) was the theme of their assembly in which a few society secrets were let out. Hidden talent in the ranks of the second-year-ers in the form of vocal soloists and harmonizers was brought to light during the course of the program.

Football, basketball, track—all felt the presence of the sophomores, several of whom brought home honors in the field of sports.
research produced them

THEN: With an inauspicious entry Freshman day, August 31, more than 400 fresh, the largest influx in the history of Olympia high, were officially introduced to Principal W. J. Matters, A.S.B. officers and the school. Trustingly following their guides through every nook and cranny, the youngsters soon became acquainted with at least the physical features of high school.

Now: Just one step removed from the sophomore classification, the fresh no longer are to be looked upon as mere babies, but as grown-ups.

Freshman! Webster’s definition is: “a novice; one in the rudiments of knowledge.” The class of ’41, however, proved an exception to the rule.

The “big shots” (upper classmen, if you please) became aware of the existence of the freshmen when, for the first time in the history of the school, they produced a fresh seven-man debate team, one of whose members, Paul Avery, won a letter at the end of the year. Jack O’Leary added to the prominence of the class by winning $2.50 for the best set of written questions in the “Professor Quiz” constitutional assembly contest.

“Some day the worm will turn.” Said worm has nothing on the first-year students, who displayed a real talent for turning when they gave exhibitions of the “Big Apple” and hula dancing in their class assembly. The performance, based around a “dogmappings” which, after a lot of barking up the wrong tree, was finally solved, was regarded by many as being one of the best assemblies of the year.

with a cheerio and a toot toot

with sleeves rolled up

With 40 blue-sweatered patroldmen roamin' the halls it is little wonder that few violators of Olympia high's rules and regulations escaped their vigilance. Would-be nuisances are immediately put in their place by the "minions of the law" (upper left). The legislative or law-making body, as represented by the Executive Council (upper right), enacted and interpreted rulings for the general welfare of the students. Providing suitable entertainment for the student body is the responsibility of the assembly committee (lower left). A.S.B. Cashiers—those people who handle all the money—are represented lower right.

we've set our course
The financial fate of Olympia high's clubs, activities and student undertakings rests in the capable hands of the apportionment committee (above). Each time $600 accumulates in the treasury the committee goes to work, giving each organization its "cut." . . . The ultimate goal of every "ticket" receiver is the lower court (upper left). Not a few knees have shaken when the owner first stood up before this body . . . "Don't stand in the aisles, please" is one phrase the ushers (second left) have learned to perfection . . . Fourth offense and no reprieve! Another tribunal for administering justice, the higher court, takes care of those who have been so careless as to receive four tickets . . . Over-active? The bane of the too-many-activities students is the point committee (bottom).
A friend may be reckoned the masterpiece of Nature.

masculine moments

Many and varied were the activities of this year’s Boys club, represented by the Board of control (top right). Chief was Dads right, April 22, with a record attendance. Acting as host to a conference of Boys club representatives from Aberdeen, Centralia and Vancouver, the Olympia delegation received a clearer conception of the program of other clubs. Frequent meetings featuring outside speakers and entertainers kept interest in the club at a peak. Sports shirts bearing the Bear emblem were sold by the club to Olympia high students.

Liquor Control, Crime and Unemployment, Capital and Unemployment: answering these problems occupied the time of Hi-Y members at the Older Boys conference in Olympia, February 18 to 20. Aside from planning for this most important event, the Hi-Y held weekly meetings at the “Y” to hear talks on and discuss the problems facing today’s American youth.

All brawn and no brains.” An old saying, but one that doesn’t apply to Olympia high’s athletes. The Knights of the Big O may well be proud of the scholastic achievements of their members. Not essentially an activity organization, the Big O’s, as a club, took little part in school affairs aside from their May 6 assembly.

HARD work? It’s all the order of the day for the K.O.’s. Keeping Stevens field in top condition, patrolling the field for individuals seeking free entrance into athletic contests, and disposing of equipment after games are good ways, say members of the Knights of the Oyster, to keep the waistline from acquiring that well fed look.

I still think I should be here— but I’ll see you next year—

1. Birds of a feather flock together. Those candid camera enthusiasts who have made life miserable for the camera-shy continue their depredations under the cognomen of the Photography club.

2. Future nurses received practice by aiding school nurse Miss Gertrude Mehner. Ministering with ointments and remedies they made themselves useful in their "errand of mercy."

3. Organized last year, the Certified Prospective Accountants persisted in their efforts toward the attainment of their goal, their counterpart in the business world—certified public accountants.

4. The Secretarial Science club, another business group, made great strides in the art of becoming efficient secretaries. They work hard.

5. Those signing up for library work received valuable training under Miss Anna Kohler, new librarian, through taking care of the school library.

6. Furthering understanding among tongues, the Language Council, under adviser Miss Emma Adatto, exchanged information among the four language groups, partly through the medium of the International Intelligencer, their publication.

1. Draftsmen enjoyed a second year of life under adviser Malcolm McLeod. The T-Square came in on the wave of new clubs last year and has continued to match the rest of the newcomers.

2. Keeping the school and grounds free of waste paper and other refuse, the Clean-Up squad went cheerfully about their work—work that, otherwise, would have remained undone.

3. Microbe hunters! Bug chasers! The Natural History club! Synonymous in the minds of students, these phrases conjure up all sorts of biological visions. One of the biggest and most active groups in the school.

4-5. These are typical, every-day scenes in the halls of O.H.S. Crowded conditions exist at Olympia high, but students are cheerful about it and make the best of the situation. It's fun to count the noses.

6. The cream of the crop in scholarship, the Honor society heads the list of "A" students. "C's" are practically unknown to these pen wielders.
